

03/07/2020

12 Things To See at the Armory Show This Weekend

Founded in 1994 by four gallerists—Colin de Land, Pat Hearn, Matthew Marks, and Paul Morris—the Armory Show began life as the Gramercy International Art Fair, a yearly event at which art dealers took over rooms in the then-funky Gramercy Park Hotel, displaying art on chipped bureaus and in dimly lit bathrooms. Now in its 26th year, the Armory Show is a much grander affair with nearly 200 exhibitors spread out across two piers on Manhattan's West Side.

- 10.
In the fair's "Presents" section, devoted to younger galleries, Uterior has paired Douglas Goldberg's sculptures with Mamie Tinkler's watercolors of shells, knickknacks, and other objects, often shown reflected in mirrors à la James Rosenquist.
PIER 94, BOOTH P10

Mamie Tinkler, Nude Bird, 2019, watercolor and gouache on paper mounted to board, 20 x 16 inches. Courtesy of the artist and Uterior Gallery, New York.